THE SEASON'S PROSPECTS

"Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown" led off last year's prospects, but now Ken Loeffler admits there are other sources of uneasiness. A year ago the Explorers, with the 1952 N.I.T. championship cast virtually intact, were preparing for the campaign with sufficient manpower to cope with a difficult schedule and with high hopes of picking up all the marbles. Eventually, only key injuries in the blue chip games prevented their doing so.

This year, however, things are different. Graduation, military service and scholastic ineligibility have missed only the incomparable Tom Gola and veteran Frank O'Hara from last year's squad, winners of 25 out of 28.

Replacing the battle-tested and capable operatives of the past few seasons are a crew of big, fast and eager sophomores up from last year's freshman club that lost only once, a 98-97 tilt with the Temple yearlings, in 15 outings.

If the sophs are the key to the situation, the "key to the key" is king-sized (6:07) John Yodsnukis, a giant from the coal region. "Yods" is strong and willing, but how quickly he can pick up the experience needed to handle top-flight competition under fire is the question. Its answer is the big clue to LaSalle's 1953-54 basketball fortunes.

The most talented of the other sophomores are Charley Singley, Fran O'Malley, Bob Maples and Frank Blatcher. The tremendous pressure placed on these youngsters - making their bow in big-league college basketball - will be eased off by the presence of slick Frank O'Hara and by Gola, the man who can do everything in basketball. At least, that's the hope of shrewd Ken Loeffler, who has blended a combination using Gola and O'Hara as leaven. If this works - watch out for LaSalle!

KENNETH D. LOEFFLER
Head Basketball Coach

Frank and sparkling Ken Loeffler is starting his fifth year as head man of the LaSalle Explorers. A 1924 graduate of Penn State, Ken came to LaSalle in 1949 after coaching the St. Louis Bombers and the Providence Steamrollers in the old BAA. He had seen previous collegiate service at Geneva College (1928-1934) and Yale University (1935-1942), and during World War II, it was Major Kenneth D. Loeffler, AAF.

Under Loeffler's tutelage, LaSalle has won the Philadelphia City Championship four times, has never been beaten at the LaSalle Field House, and has climaxed each season by appearing in New York's National Invitation Tournament, winning that event in 1952. At LaSalle, Ken's teams have won 93 while losing 21, for a nifty .816 winning per cent against the best college teams in the land.

Loeffler is an entertaining speaker with a fund of stories, and is much in demand on the banquet circuit. His deep knowledge of the game makes him a popular lecturer at basketball clinics, and he is highly regarded as a court strategist by the coaching and sports writing fraternities. Loeffler-trained teams are always basically sound on both offense and defense....his 1952-1953 Explorers lead the nation's teams for average scoring margin over all opponents.

Ken Loeffler doesn't have to prove himself as a basketball coach, and it would be difficult for him to enhance his status, except with the type personnel he has this year. With the exception of Tom Gola and Frank O'Hara, a good, but totally inexperienced sophomore team must face a major league collegiate schedule. If anybody can get them ready, it's Ken Loeffler.

 TOM GOLA **

"The greatest schoolboy basketball player ever developed in the Philadelphia area" has become "the nation's greatest collegian"..... this is the basketball story - in headlines - of Tom Gola.

Gola, the boy without a nickname, is set and ready for his third season of college basketball. Voted the outstanding player in Madison Square Garden, Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium and San Francisco's Cow Palace, he has won over 30 major basketball honors, including a berth on just about everybody's All American team.

This year Gola will be operating without an all-star supporting cast - most of the 1953-54 Explorers will be raw sophomores - and the feeling persists that, in spite of play that has sent scribes from coast to coast scurrying in search of untapped sources of superlatives, Gola still has reserves of ability that will be brought out in this year's campaign.

**

PLAYER SKETCHES

FRANK BLATCHER:

Probably the best outside shot on the squad....four year Navy veteran....played at South Philadelphia High School.... will probably be very effective against zone-type defenses.

BOB MAPLES:

One of the big sophomores at 6:05....fast and aggressive....has quick hands....is from Elmhurst, Ill....Bob and Manny Gomez are the first out-of-state players on the LaSalle roster in three seasons....played service ball at Atlantic City NAS....has great potential.

FRANK O'HARA:

Smallest man on squad at 5:09....likeable and personable....brown hair and blue eyes.....captain of the Philadelphia All-Catholic team in 1949-50....on Dean's Honor List consistently....slick ball handler....his experience and savvy are expected to steady a young team this year.

FRAN O'MALLEY:

Dark haired....good looking....is deceptively fast....was second in scoring with a 13.8 frosh average....will team with Singley again this year to give the Explorers a one-two scoring punch.

CHARLES SINGLEY:

Quick and aggressive....good defensive man....looks like a sure bet to become a great college player....has tremendous drive and spring....led frosh scoring last season with a 16.3 average.

JOHN YODSNUKIS:

"Yods"....big, strong and willing....from Warrior Run in the Pennsylvania coal regions....will team with Cola in patrolling the boards....has to replace Jackie Moore, a large order for a soph....served 3 years as a Sgt. in the Army.

RESERVES

In a campaign as grueling as the one facing the 1953-54 Explorers, the bench assumes almost as much importance as the starting line-up. Bob Ames, Frank Finegan, Manny Gomez, Charlie Greenberg and Gary Holmes all have the ability to blossom into starters overnight. These men will bear watching and when the season's log is finally posted, it will surely reflect the performance of these five men in key games.
